Vikings In Home Opener Friday

The 1971 gridiron season will get underway this Friday evening when the Grayling Vikings entertain the Houghton Lake Bobcats in a non-conference contest under the lights, starting at 8:00 p.m.

The Vikings will have two other non-conference games before they enter NMLL league action. On Sept. 24 the local grid squad will travel to St. Ignace and on Oct. 1 they will journey to Whittemore-Prentiss. Both games are scheduled for 8:00 p.m. kickoffs.

Grayling will have only three home games this year. Besides the Houghton Lake game, Pellston and Kalkaska will be at Grayling in league contests.

The Vikings in their scrimmage against Harrison last Friday evening, ran and passed the ball well, but, made many offensive mistakes, which is characteristic of the young team. The Vikings are fielding, head coach Mike Weiland stated.

Both Terry Fitzpatrick and Mark Doty ran the ball club for scoring drives, mixing their passing and running attack real well.

A 12 quarterback combination will allow us to change personnel often and allow side line conferences with the players during the game, coach Weiland said.

Jim Tobin and Dan McIsaac pulled in passes from both quarterbacks and also from fullback Kim Parkinson. Besides Parkinson, Dan Moore and Bruce King will be in the starting backfield for the Vikings, coach Weiland said.

The defensive unit will include, Steve Westervelt, Bob Vollmer, Steve Ellis, Marc Harland and Mike Gilder.

Many younger, less experienced squad members are improving rapidly and we should be able to use more players as the season progresses, coach Weiland said.

Looking towards Friday night, we are rather injury free, with the exception of Dave White, who we hope to have back in 2 or 3 weeks, Weiland added.

A complete Varsity, JV's and Freshman schedule for the season appears on page nine of this issue. Clip and save.

Kirtland's Enrollment Shows Increase

With student registration nearly complete, Kirtland Community College is pleased to show an increase of approximately 15% in full-time equated students over the 1970 fall semester figure of 369. It is estimated that FTES (full-time equated students) this semester will number around 425. Exact figures have not been determined at this time due to add and drops still coming through daily.

Official full-time student count in community colleges is determined by totaling all credit hours for which students are enrolled and dividing by a 15.5 factor. At this time indications are that Kirtland's total credit hours will be something over 6,500.

Classes began August 26th and the semester will terminate before the Christmas holidays.

Grayling — Efforts to formulate a plan for total management of the AuSable River Watershed were put into motion here Wednesday at a combined meeting of the policy committee and the agency task force which are working with the AuSable Study Project.

The two groups are allied with the Northeast Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission which is involved in a two-year, comprehensive study of the river and its environment.

James L. Williams, project director, said the study is designed to assemble all the facts to develop regulations to maintain the quality of the river while at the same time providing the greatest use by the greatest possible number of people.

The end product of the study, he said, should be the creation of a body that can administer the watershed.

He said that in cooperation with the Department of Natural Resources, local governments and technical commission it is hoped to develop a set of rules and regulations for river use prior to the opening of the 1972 season.

He pointed out that river use is only one part of the study project which will cover all phases of the entire watershed. However, it was conflict over use of the river between fish-men, canoeists and property owners that brought about the involvement of the Natural Resources Commission and resulted in the creation of the Watershed Study Commission to which the DNR and the Northeast Commission were to act as technical advisors.

The DNR already has a set of proposed regulations for use of the AuSable. The Northeast Commission hopes to work with the DNR to make the guidelines more workable and at the same time satisfy both local residents and the DNR, officials said.

In a reference to the DNR proposed regulations, which would require public hearings prior to adoption, Williams said he believes the DNR has every right to use the authority granted under Act 17 to manage natural resources and that their intentions in establishing river use rules are honorable and the regulations were developed in good faith.

In his opening statement at the planning session, Williams said, "The AuSable River is one of the most valuable resources we have in the state of Michigan. It can become a model for scientific management, provide pleasure for generations to come, and serve the needs of all modes of outdoor recreation. There is no doubt, however, that it will have to be rationed, and a system of priorities established for the long term use of the river."

He continued, "This system of priorities will involve land use, fishing, economy, forest management, erosion control, and the full spectrum of inter-related functions to make a complex whole."

The Wednesday meeting included a colored slide presentation highlighting the conflict over river use, and a motion picture on land use, depicting the pressure of population growth on outdoor recreation and pinpointing the need for state-wide planning.

The presentations emphasized that "Wilderness is a non-renewable resource which cannot be expanded."

George Byelich, natural resource specialist on the Regional Commission planning staff, is in direct charge of the watershed study.

He reviewed the timetable of the project, dividing it into three parts.

First, he said, is the inventory or data stage. Next is the planning stage and definition of potential with the possible need for policy changes. Last, he said, is the implementation stage, which he described as "selling the project" to township and county people.

A survey of river use, a part of the data collecting stage, has already been completed by the University of Michigan School of Natural Resources.

In a brochure issued by the Northeast Commission, it is noted that the study project evolved out of a concern for the aesthetic and ecological survival of the AuSable, known nationwide to fishermen, recognized as a canoeing stream and valued as a sound property investment with the multiple uses having the seeds for conflict.

It also points out the need for sound resource management. In the study program are listed (See AuSable Study on page 10)

DNR Planning Canoe Hearings

MANISTEE — A series of public hearings on proposed canoeing restrictions for the AuSable, Manistee, Pine and Pere Marquette Rivers will begin "very soon," according to Dr. Ralph A. MacMullen, director of the state Department of Natural Resources.

We are not "cramping anything down anyone's throat," said Dr. MacMullen at the Natural Resources Commission meeting here where tentative approval of the proposed restrictions was given.

"Everyone is going to have a chance to be heard on the proposed regulations," said Commissioner Hilary F. Snell of Grand Rapids, he said tentative approval of the plan merely paved the way for the public hearings.

The regulations could provide guidelines for restrictions on all state rivers, when needed, the commission was told.

Under the proposed statewide policy, the commission would be able to designate rivers or portions of them as "protected" streams. It also would be able to prescribe the kind of use by watercraft in certain sections of the rivers.

On such stretches, for example, canoes or boats would be required to obtain permits. And in "high intensity" areas, not more than 30 watercraft per hour could use the stream. Only one craft each five minutes would be permitted in waters protected for "low intensity" use.

Use of the rivers involved would be permitted only from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. at certain times of the year. From July 1 to Labor Day, for example, the only restrictions that would be placed on such streams would be the hours during which people could float them.

Other limitations would apply, along with special hours, from the opening of trout season thru June 30. From Labor Day to the opening of trout season, there would be no limitation.

As proposed, the headwater sections of the four streams generally would be reserved for wading fishermen. Restrictions on canoeing would be placed on the middle reaches, while there would be no limitations on uses of the lower sections of the rivers.

"If It Fits . . ."—By Jim Fitzgerald

Bomb those buses!

Please pass the dynamite. Our daughter is bused to school but not to the school closest to our home.

Our son doesn't attend the school nearest home either. But he walks to school. I don't mind blowing up a bus but it doesn't seem fair to break the kid's leg just to bug the school board. Come to think, he does ride his bike sometimes. I could let the air out of his tires.

Our school district is about the largest, geographically, in Michigan. Some students attend school 20 miles from where they live. Every day they are bused past dozens of schools closer to their homes.

Obviously, this is a terrible thing. Our district should be ripe for revolt. Bombs should be sold at roadside stands. But there's no excitement at all. No protests. Just peace. I've had to drink all my Molotov cocktails. Some days even the most active activist can't find any action. But how come . . .

The TV news showed the dynamited buses burning in Pontiac, just a few miles down the highway. A middle-aged woman looked fiercely into the camera and said the destroyed buses were "the most beautiful sight I have ever seen."

Now there is an activist to be admired. She obviously has political ambitions. She will end up in the state capitol, sharing an office with Pontiac's Rep Arthur Law, another beautiful person. The day before the buses were bombed, Law urged his constituents to ignore the stupid law and keep their kids off the buses. (I wish Rep Law would change his name to Humpertink. It is difficult to type a lower case "l" while writing about him and a stupid law in the same paragraph.)

So how come they get all the fun and violence in Pontiac, and in a lot of other towns, but none in my school district? Why doesn't our bus system make parents angry enough to fight?

I'm certainly glad you asked. Our district has a skin problem. Too much white and not enough black.

You see, parents everywhere used to be the same. They didn't care when 1-room schools were consolidated into 1,573-room educational complexes. They didn't care that this meant Junior had to be bused to high school 30 miles away, even though there was an elementary school building around the corner from home, and a junior high building just up the block, and 8 abandoned Little Red Schoolhouses within walking distance. The bus trip was necessary because it meant a better education for Junior.

But lately, the federal government and the courts have been looking at school systems in such towns as Pontiac. They discovered some school boards were "discriminating to perpetuate segregation." This means the black Juniors were separated from the white Juniors. As always, the black kids got the short end of the stick and kids of both colors lost the chance to learn to know and maybe even love each other. Most parents like this segregation because it makes it easier to raise the kids to be good little bigots like Ma and Pa.

The courts ordered these schools to start achieving "racial balance" even if they had to use buses to do it. And that's what put the lighted fuse in all those buses.

Busing is fine for Junior if it means he'll learn more. But if the dumb bus is going to deposit Junior next to a Negro, that's not a better education. That's a kid of another color. Dynamite the damn buses.

And don't you dare call the bombers racists, for goodness sakes.

They're busists.

Speaker Ryan A Real Pro

That Bill Ryan. He's a wonder. A real pro at work.

I refer, of course, to the Hon. Rep. William A. Ryan of Detroit, speaker of the Michigan House of Representatives and without a doubt, the most powerful individual in the legislature and perhaps in all of state government.

Ryan's recent tactic in stalling activity in the house until he got the welfare bill he wanted exasperated many observers. Ryan simply kept adjourning the house until he had the votes lined up to do what he wanted to do. Ryan outlasted his opponents, and finally went home with what he set out to accomplish—a liberalized welfare bill.

That's an example of Ryan's power. Usually, in the Michigan legislature, what Bill Ryan wants, Bill Ryan gets.

He's a tough, shrewd bargainer and tactician, operating within his own set of philosophies and principles. He knows where the weak points and the strong points are located, and how to play them.

I haven't been inside the Michigan legislature in session for a number of years, so have not watched Bill Ryan operate in person. All I know is what I read in the papers. And what I read leads to the inevitable conclusion that Bill Ryan is a real pro at legislative politics.

If you can set aside objectives and philosophies usually, for example, Ryan and I would disagree about 90 percent of the time on issues. It's still a joy to watch him operate within the framework of the legislative function. He knows how to find the far reaches of power of his office, and use them effectively to get what he wants done.

Part of it, no doubt, is his background and training in union politics. He was a local UAW officer before coming to the legislature, and carries with him many of the tactics and approaches of tough union-management bargaining.

The speaker's office in the Michigan legislature can be a powerful one. Some men who have occupied the office have found the keys to that power, and used it, effectively.

However, in my memory, none has been nearly as effective as Bill Ryan.

Back not too many months ago, when the merits of the 18-year-old vote were being debated, most politicians approached the subject rather gingerly. In general, Democrats tended to favor the 18-year-old vote more than Republicans.

Both points are quite understandable in light of a recent survey taken at the University of Michigan.

Reported by the Washtenaw County Young Republicans, this survey indicates that the Republican party is "not held in much respect by college students," according to the wire service report of the results.

As a matter of fact, the report claims, University of Michigan students are "very antagonistic toward both parties."

Usually, the poll indicated, students favored neither party, tending instead to be strongly independent. But of those who did choose a party, the choice was the Democrats by a 20-1 margin. There's nothing really surprising in this poll, which generally confirms what most political observers already have surmised about college students' political beliefs.

The whole 18-year-old vote problem—and it is a definite problem for both political parties—centers on the fact that old pro politicians don't really know how the young voters are going to vote.

Will they vote the way their parents vote, because their parents vote that way? Or will they vote just exactly opposite their parents, for reasons of rebellion? Who knows?

But youth is a fertile field for politicians. In Michigan, with the thin margins in statewide races and in many parts of the state, the youth vote could be decisive. That's why both parties are scurrying like mad to find some way to attract young people.

The next governor we have very likely will be determined by votes cast by young people under 21. That is, if they get out and vote.

And that's something to ponder, isn't it?

Volunteers Needed

The local school district is planning an extensive campaign to recruit volunteer aides to assist teachers in instructing under-achieving students.

According to the project's innovator, Fraser Dean, the school is attempting to mobilize the talent resources within the community to provide individual help for students having learning difficulties.

Dean stated that the school has been given approval under a federal grant to hire a volunteer aid coordinator who will devote most of her energies to recruiting housewives, retirees, and college students, and matching them with students needing help.

The school district's remedial teachers, Shirley Whipple and Peter Ingvarsson, will work closely with the aides and the classroom teachers in prescribing the learning tasks for the under-achiever. Most of the work prescribed will be in reading and math.

Anyone who has the time and would be willing to give it a try, should contact Mr. Dean or elementary principals, Ralph Miller and Patrick Nunn.

School Plans Science Study

Under the direction of Grayling Elementary Principal Pat Nunn, and second grade teacher Mary Jane Knibbs, the local school system is conducting a pilot science program called the AAAS process approach.

Produced by Xerox Corporation, the science program is rapidly catching on with educators throughout the country. Featuring a classroom science learning kit, the program is based on the laboratory or activity centered approach in contrast with the traditional text book approach found in most elementary schools.

If the pilot program proves to be a success in better meeting the needs of all elementary youngsters, the program will eventually be expanded into other grades in the school system.

For the convenience of those who are not able to register during the day, the office will be open from 7:00 p.m. until 9:00 p.m. each evening.

Rates Must Reflect Costs

Throughout the nation, electric power consumers are faced with higher rates. Customers of tax-favored, government-financed electric power projects have felt the same trend. However, taxpayer, investor-owned companies have one problem government projects do not have.

A government power project is the product of taxation — compulsory investment. A taxpayer, private company — by contrast — depends for its existence on voluntary investment. It gets its capital for expansion and new plant facilities from private citizens who put savings to work in a company because they have confidence in the ability of that company to earn a reasonable profit and pay a return on those savings. What the public tends to forget is that the managements of taxpayer, private utilities must serve two masters — power consumers and investors. The Detroit Free Press observes: "The hard fact . . . is that rates are going to go up simply because the utilities have not been making enough money to be competitive for investors; they are faced with the biggest capital improvement programs in their history to meet enormous and unforeseen increases in demand, and they must do this at a time when money is ferociously expensive to borrow . . . Though no one likes paying constantly increasing bills for necessary services, the remarkable part of the utility story is that so little of the increase has come from higher rates. During the past four years, rates have increased about four percent. In the same period, average takehome pay in Michigan is up 15.4 percent and cost of living up 17.4 percent."

The population continues to increase, and there must be electric power. The only question is whether it will be produced through the voluntary investment of private citizens or through the compulsory investment of taxpayers. Either way, rates must ultimately reflect costs of production.

COMSTOCK, NEBR., NEWS: "As I understand it, we were an underdeveloped country 180 years ago, with a population of three million. While we were underdeveloped, some of the now underdeveloped countries were then developed. Now that they are underdeveloped, we are becoming underdeveloped helping those underdeveloped countries become developed again. When we finally become underdeveloped and the underdeveloped nations are developed, I wonder if they will come to our aid?"

Mt. Hope Announces Sunday School Program

Mt. Hope Lutheran Church, 710 Spruce (corner of Spruce and Vine) has announced that beginning this coming Sunday, September 19, at 9:00 a.m., they will offer a Sunday School Program for area young. This represents a departure from the practice of the past years when Mt. Hope offered an afternoon Week Day School Program.

The program for this year promises to be very exciting with the introduction of a new series of lessons. Featured will be the new "Mission: Life" Program offered by the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. This new program contains the familiar Biblical accounts which speak of man's sin and God's grace in Jesus Christ but adds to this concern about the interests, feelings, and needs of people struggling to find meaning for their life in a troubled and confused world. All lessons will be colorful, multi-media presentations as they make use of activities, posters, record and recordings, and filmstrips.

Although Mt. Hope will begin with this program for the young only, it is planned to add Bible Classes and Doctrinal Discussions during the same hour for the adults, at a future date. The schedule of Worship Services at Mt. Hope for this coming Winter Season will be at 8:00 p.m. on Saturday evenings and 10:30 a.m. on Sunday mornings, with Sunday School at 9:00 a.m. Sundays.

If you wish to enroll your child in the Sunday School Program you may bring them at 8:45 to 9:00 a.m. on the 19th, or contact the church office (348-2421) for further information.

Homer Kings Celebrate 30th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Homer (Mud) King Sr. were the guests of honor at an open house held at their home on Mikado Street in celebration of their 30th wedding anniversary. The affair which was held on Sunday, August 29th, was given by their children, Homer Jr., Dan of the U. S. Army stationed in Calif., Robert, stationed in Pensacola, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. James (Frances) Barclay, Mr. and Mrs. Rickey Gardner of Roscommon and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Rickley of Norwalk, Ohio.

A most appropriate and beautiful cake was made for the occasion by Lucille Tetting. The number 30, in form of candles and a gold basket decorated the top of the cake.

The open house was well attended by many friends and relatives of the couple. Among those attending was his aunt, Mrs. Florence Barton of Washington and Mr. and Mrs. George Kanarbar and son of Ashley, Ohio. Miss Linda Stephan, daughter of Mrs. Allan Stephan of Fort Lauderdale, Florida and the late Mr. Stephan, became the bride of John Douglas Haager, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Haager, Sr. of Stuart, Florida. The August 21 wedding was performed in the Wilton Manor Baptist Church by the Rev. Calvin R. Booth in a candlelight service at 3:00 p.m. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Norman Stephan of Bayshore, Michigan. Special music was provided by Christine Stephan, sister of the bride, who sang "He" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Linda is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Barber of Frederic, who attended the wedding, and the late Mr. and Mrs. John G. Stephan.

For her wedding, the bride chose a floor length gown of white satin and re-embroidered Alencon lace. The lace formed the fitted bodice and the long tapered sleeves that came to points over her hands. The portrait neckline was formed by the lace edge. The semi-sheath skirt was of delustered satin. The train, caught at the waistline by self fabric roses, was also of the satin and lace. Her bouquet consisted of two cymbidium orchids and stephanotis on a small white bible.

Maid of honor was Holly Stephan, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids were Kim Stephan, also a sister, Mrs. Valerie Hamel and Debbie Carter.

For her attendants, the bride chose identical floor length gowns of orange chiffon and taffeta with long sleeves and white lace forming a vest. They carried cascade bouquets of orange and white carnations.

Lance Kahle served as best man. The ushers were Jeff Stephan, brother of the bride, Ervin Haager, Jr., brother of the groom, Gary Pollard, Richard Hamel and Bob Elliott.

The reception was held at the church. The four-tiered cake was decorated with white roses and orange tinted icing.

The bride is a graduate of Ft. Lauderdale High School and the groom from Martin County High School. Both will be entering their third year at Palm Beach Atlantic College, West Palm Beach, Fla.

Following their honeymoon at Miami Beach, the couple is residing at 308 Mango Prom, Apt. 10, West Palm Beach, Fla.

It is a beautiful afternoon, and Ken and Monica might have gone for a ride in the country. But they've come to the hospital to visit a classmate.

It isn't always a "fun" thing to visit someone in the hospital, to call on an elderly aunt, or to take a gift to a shut-in. But usually you feel better when you do.

This is a "hurry up" world we're living in. We tell ourselves that there isn't time for the little kindnesses. There isn't time for a lot of things — like, maybe, going to church.

Who are we kidding? Ourselves, perhaps?

These Department of Natural Resources' proposals for governing use of Michigan streams, including especially the AuSable, have been officially recommended. I still can't believe they can be serious, but I guess they are. Mr. Hilary Snell of Grand Rapids, a new Commissioner, has been most instrumental in seeing these proposals officially adopted. Now Mr. Snell is a very active supporter of the Trout Unlimited people who are the strongest proponents. Not all the TU people, just the loudest ones. One of the most vocal & effective persons to speak at the recent Commission hearing in Manistee was William Priest, well known in Michigan for his activities in TU. I wasn't at the hearing, but I have heard from one who was there that as Mr. Priest was being questioned, one of the Commissioners mentioned that there was apparently quite a bit of opposition from people in the Grayling area. And to that remark Hilary Snell is reported to have said that the people in the Grayling area just didn't understand the problem and were more concerned with their economic self-interest than anything else. So, friends and neighbors, we know where we stand.

— JP —

There'll be hearings, as the DNR puts it, but they'll probably be like the ones on adding more restricted trout water to the Manistee a few years back. What local people felt apparently didn't mean much. Those hearings were an insult to the democratic process. But then these new proposals are designed to aid a very small group of wading trout fishermen who use the current ecology kick as justification for their own personal desires. I am not trying to say that something shouldn't be done. Something certainly should be. And the canoe liveries are the first to admit it. But no one wants to go out of business. Aside from that thought, there is the far greater one that these proposed regulations would effectively stop practically all organized trips by scouts and others.

er youngsters who may only have one chance to travel the rivers. It will put an end to all commercial guiding. It means that those who work all day and want to take a boat or canoe and go fishing in the evening won't be able to do it. Wade or don't fish, I guess. Well, as far as I am concerned, this is strictly a class action on the part of the DNR, and if not downright illegal, is at the very least immoral.

— JP —

I would imagine that these proposals will spell the end of Trout Unlimited in this town. I know I won't join again. TU keeps advocating clean water and more and better fishing. I always thought these were noble goals. I still do. But TU is working in areas which are pretty far removed from these publicized aims. And I am not particularly anxious to have my dues used to support a program which I and a great many other trout fishermen don't believe in. So long, Trout Unlimited, don't think it hasn't been fun!

— JP —

By the way, Hilary Snell has bought a piece of property between Stephan's and Wakeley's bridges, apparently happy in the belief that his view will seldom be spoiled by people he doesn't approve of.

The PAA National Archery Championships are now over and it is a pleasure to report that almost without exception the archers liked our community. The most general comment heard was that never have they been made to feel more welcome than they have in Grayling. They look forward to coming back next year. And I look forward to seeing them.

Impressions in Vermont: Two weekends ago I was in a small Vermont town for my son's wedding. The impressions were mainly of people who were at peace with themselves and each other. The happy and scurry were gone. People walked, sat on the grass in the village green. Let their hair grow long and spoke softly. Not many wasted words. Small cars, mainly foreign. An outdoor wedding in a natural amphitheater where guests sat on the grass and the young couple looked each other in the eyes as they recited their vows. A guitar. Love, kindness, and an overall honesty which I have seldom experienced. Middlebury, Vermont, isn't exactly a place. It's an experience. And I found out what is meant by the words "Beautiful People."

Sept. 7th, Chapter night program was called to order by Senior Regent Maggie Miller. There were nine members present with 1 enrollment. It was Ruth Towles, publicity chairman, chapter night program. Her project was a chicken or meat loaf dinner. The turn out was real good. She wishes to express her appreciation to all the members and their guests for coming to make it a success.

With speed being the name of the game for this year's JV's, standouts were Walt Kozicki, Wayne Westervelt, Kevin Zimmerman, Jim Bobenmoyer and Bert Kaiser.

ed five elements, physical, biological, economic, use and recommendations.

"With the facts gathered from the field in 1971, we expect to begin to manage the AuSable River environs under new policies and a new design," the commission notes, and adds, "Tourism is our most important product in Northern Michigan and we hope that studies such as this will insure perpetuity of such valuable natural resources as the AuSable."

The planning session was the first one to bring together the task force and the policy group. The task force was identified as a group with professional expertise including some 25 government and private services, departments, commissions, schools, councils and administrations.

The policy committee was reported as a review group of local agencies including county commissioners.

The two groups are to meet on alternate months with combined meetings to be held every four months to review progress reports.

The next meeting of the task force will be Tuesday, Oct. 5, at Grayling. The policy committee meets Tuesday, Nov. 9, possibly at Mio or Roscommon.

The watershed study will cost a total of $173,000 and is sponsored by the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission, Michigan Department of Commerce and Michigan Department of Natural Resources.
